Castro's Warnings

SIR: Let's call a spade a spade. We were grossly misinformed by an American in whom we have placed blind confidence regarding general conditions in Cuba and, consequently, lost face throughout the world by our fruitless adventure. That man was Allen Dulles, head of the CIA.

We were accurately informed by a Cuban on whom we have placed no confidence regarding general conditions in Cuba. If we would have heeded his constant warnings and expressions of the solidarity of the Cuban peoples a great catastrophe could have been avoided. That man was Fidel Castro.
